The Quad Cities River Bandits paired with TBK Bank to rehabilitate a local baseball diamond. This field, home of the Northwest Davenport Babe Ruth League, had gone years without any significant work done. Crabgrass had overgrown the infield, the pitchers mound was worn down, and the bullpens were just grass lanes.

Under the direction of the Head Groundskeeper, River Bandits staff and TBK Bank volunteers teamed up to turn the worn down field into a safe and beautiful diamond over a two-day period.

Altogether, the River Bandits staff and volunteers donated over 10 hours of work to rehabilitate the field. Among other things, this work included: pulling crabgrass, mowing, weed-eating, lining, and replacing home plate and the pitching rubber in the bullpens.
Monetary Donations are contributions made to a charitable cause in monetary form.

The River Bandits donate 50 cents of every amusement ride to the Quad Cities through the Genesis Foundation and Community Fund.

On top of that, the River Bandits' Bandit Scholars Program is also a monetary donation toward the tuition of local students attending local institutions of higher education.

The Bandits Scholars program was established in 2009 by Dave Heller, owner of the Quad Cities River Bandits, to make a positive and sustainable difference throughout the Quad Cities. The program incorporates three area institutions of higher learning: Augustana College, St. Ambrose University, and Eastern Iowa Community College.

This program seeks to identify the area’s best and brightest future leaders and give them the opportunity to complete a year of study with no tuition cost to themselves or their families. It also awards each Scholar a paid internship with the River Bandits.

By enabling these students to pursue their academic passion, get real on the job experience, and make their future in the Quad Cities, they can become catalysts for the growth and improvement of our community.
In-stadium fundraising

The Quad Cities River Bandits have a number of programs that allow non-profit and community organizations to raise funds through our stadium.

Events such as jersey auctions, organizations of the night, 50/50, our 5k, and in 2019, flood fundraising, have led to a large sum of donations through in-stadium fundraising.

TOTAL FUNDS RAISED IN-STADIUM
Throughout the entire month of June and the first week of July, the Quad Cities River Bandits used their unique position to raise funds for flood relief after a devastating flood season.

With donation helmets in hand, River Bandits employees walked through the ballpark at June/July home games asking for donations from generous fans.

The team partnered with Genesis Health Systems and, River Bandits owner, Dave Heller, who both pledged to match the funds raised at the ballpark.

DONATED TO THE QUAD CITIES COMMUNITY FOR FLOOD RELIEF EFFORTS
Each season, the River Bandits host their annual "Race to Home 5k and Fun Run" presented by Palmer Chiropractic Clinics.

The race starts in Iowa, crosses into Illinois, back to Iowa, and finishes at home plate of Modern Woodmen Park.

All proceeds raised through the event go toward the Bandits Scholar Program to assist with tuition of local students, attending a local university.
